

UF | IFAS CALS

UNIVERSITY of FLORIDA

DOCTOR OF PLANT MEDICINE

Transformative Plant Health Education since 1999

The mission of the University of Florida, DPM Program is to provide premier professional doctoral training for plant scientists. Our graduates are important team members and leaders in industry, the private sector, government, and academia.

DOCTOR OF PLANT MEDICINE

Premier Plant Doctor Training for Industry, the Private Sector, Government Employers, and Academia

ufplantdoctors.org

Requirements:

- B.S. or M.S. degree in agricultural or biological sciences
- 3.0 or higher GPA
- Graduate Assistantships Competitively Available
- Admission to the University of Florida Graduate School

About the Program:

The Doctor of Plant Medicine degree program provides professional doctoral training through rigorous academic coursework and hands-on internships. Key University of Florida/IFAS departments or units involved in mentoring and instructing students include:

- Agronomy
- Entomology and Nematology
- Environmental Horticulture
- Horticultural Sciences
- Plant Pathology
- School of Forest Resources and Conservation
- Soil and Water Sciences

Internships:

DPM students complete internships in plant health diagnostics, consulting, extension, industry, marketing, sales, and government. Internships may be local, within Florida, out-of-state, or abroad.

Job Opportunities for Plant Doctors:

- Industry
- Extension
- Diagnostics
- State and Federal Agencies
- Research
- Teaching
- Regulatory
- Crop consulting

Additional Information:

Visit our website for more information, ufplantdoctors.org, or contact DPM Program Assistant Elena Alyanaya by e-mail at ealyanaya@ufl.edu, or by phone at (352) 273-3903 or contact DPM Program Director Dr. Amanda Hodges by e-mail at achodges@ufl.edu or by phone at (352) 273-3957.

ufplantdoctors.org